

Epic Journey Design

Museum-quality wildlife habitats, dioramas, and scenic fabrication

A division of Stehling's Taxidermy · Jefferson & Green Bay, Wisconsin

Epic Journey Design is a Wisconsin exhibit fabrication studio building museum-quality wildlife habitats, dioramas, artificial rockwork, and immersive themed environments for museums, zoos, nature centers, parks, universities, retailers, and hospitality clients nationwide. Design, sculpting, molding, casting, painting, finishing, crating, and installation are handled by our own crews, and as a division of Stehling's Taxidermy we can deliver both the specimens and the environment built around them.

CORE COMPETENCIES

- Museum-quality wildlife dioramas and habitat exhibits
- Artificial rockwork, cliff systems, and cave environments
- Water and wetland scenes, including dry-water effects
- Forest, woodland, desert, and grassland habitat builds
- Artificial and preserved trees, foliage, and groundcover
- Backdrop murals and horizon blending
- Taxidermy mount integration and habitat bases
- Diorama restoration, conservation cleaning, and lighting retrofits
- Themed retail, lodge, and hospitality environments
- Delivery, crating, and on-site installation nationwide

WHO WE SERVE

- Natural history museums
- Zoos and aquariums
- Nature and visitor centers
- State and national park facilities
- Universities and teaching collections
- Outdoor and sporting retailers
- Restaurants, lodges, and hospitality
- Private collectors

FACILITIES & REACH

Jefferson, Wisconsin — headquarters

8,000 sq. ft. fabrication studio

Green Bay, Wisconsin

3,000 sq. ft. showroom

Service area

Fabrication in Wisconsin, with delivery and installation across the United States.

DIFFERENTIATORS

Over 50 years of craft

A continuous habitat and taxidermy tradition rooted in the Stehling family studio, carried forward by the same hands that built the work in our portfolio.

In-house fabrication

Sculpting, molding, casting, painting, and finishing happen in our own Wisconsin facilities — not subcontracted — so quality and schedule stay under one roof.

Taxidermy and habitat together

As a division of Stehling's Taxidermy we deliver the specimens and the environment they live in, matched to each other from the start.

Restoration as well as new build

We refresh and conserve aging exhibits, letting institutions extend the life of existing galleries within tighter budget cycles.

PAST PERFORMANCE

Completed habitat installations include work for zoos, museums, universities, and national outdoor retailers, with photography of finished environments documented in our online portfolio at epicjourneydesign.com/portfolio. Client references, certificates of insurance, and project-specific past-performance documentation are available on request for RFP and procurement packages.

Request a proposal

Send scope, dimensions, and timeline — we respond with a capabilities fit, references, and a fabrication approach.

(920) 650-5457

info@epicjourneydesign.com

epicjourneydesign.com/contact